Prof. Claypole Will Lecture.

Arrangements have been made by the University Extension Association for two or more lectures, by Prof. E. W. Claypole, of Throope Polytechnic Institute, to be given in September. Prof. Claypole is one of the foremost scientists in the West. No one should miss these lectures.

Dr. Bridge who, a few weeks ago, delivered his very interesting and instructive lecture on "Some Tangents of the Ego" before the Association, says of Prof. Claypole, "He is certainly one of the most attractive lecturers that I ever listened to".

The Association is in communication with a number of other prominent educators, including the Presidents of Stanford University and the State University of California, both of whom will doubtless lecture before the Association at some future time, one of them perhaps very soon.

Every man and woman, young or old, who can possibly attend these lectures should secure the course ticket for the five remaining lectures and attend every lecture. It is a rare opportunity for five entertainments and intellectual treats for the nominal cost of one dollar.

Fourth of July.

Flagstaff is noted for the successful celebrations of the birthday of our Great Republic. The celebration this year was on a grander scale than heretofore attempted and the event attracted visitors from all over the territory.

The programme was closely followed and the barbecue dinner, which was excellently prepared and served, was enjoyed by everybody. The games which followed were enthusiastically entered into by both old and young.

The hose contest on the Fourth was won by the Milton team, who threw water in 29½ seconds. The Nevin hose team was close after them as they got water in 30 seconds. The D. M. Riordan company had bad luck and lost their connection. The races and base ball games were the attractions for the afternoon and the large crowd fully enjoyed the events of the day.

The boys game of base ball was won by the Williams boys; score, 25 to 20. The game of base ball between Winslow and Flagstaff was won by the latter club; score, 12 to 11.
